Chester, 2013-11-12 Borders and Conflict in South Asia is the first full length study of the 1947 drawing of the Indo Pakistani boundary in Punjab Using the Radcliffe commission as a window onto the decolonisation and independence of India and Pakistan and examining the competing interests both internal and international that influenced the actions of the various major players it highlights British efforts to maintain a grip on India even as the decolonisation process spun out of control Drawing on extensive archival research in India Pakistan and Britain combined with innovative use of cartographic sources the book paints a vivid picture of both the partition process and the Radcliffe line s impact on Punjab This book will be vital reading for scholars and students of colonialism decolonisation partition and borderlands studies while providing anyone interested in South Asia s independence with a highly readable account of one of its most controversial episodes Decentralization and Intrastate Struggles Kristin M. Bakke, 2015-06-04 There is no one size fits all decentralized fix to deeply divided and conflict ridden states One of the hotly debated policy prescriptions for states facing self determination demands is some form of decentralized governance including regional autonomy arrangements and federalism which grants minority groups a degree of self rule Yet the track record of existing decentralized states suggests that these have widely divergent capacity to contain conflicts within their borders Through in depth case studies of Chechnya Punjab and Qu bec as well as a statistical cross country analysis this book argues that while policy fiscal approach and political decentralization can indeed be peace preserving at times the effects of these institutions are conditioned by traits of the societies they are meant to govern Decentralization may help preserve peace in one country or in one region but it may have just the opposite effect in a country or region with different ethnic and economic characteristics
